

Wife drive

● If you thought holding kitty parties or botox luncheons were all corporate first wives did, think again. Take Rohini Nilekani, wife of Infosys co-chairman

Nandan Nilekani. After running a non government organisation, authoring a medical thriller and hosting a TV show, she has now launched her second book, Uncommon Ground: Dialogues between Business and Social Leaders. The book is a compilation of conversations between business and social leaders who participated in Nilekani's 2008 TV talk show of the same name. And it revolves around topics like food, energy and transportation in India. Clearly, Mrs Nilekani knows how to push the boundaries as far as her own identity is concerned.
