

Now, Mrs Nilekani on TV

It is time for change. To business television junkies, Nandan Nilekani has been a familiar face. Be it talking about his company or pitching for Indian software skills, Nilekani is almost a brand ambassador for the industry. In the next, we will see another Nilekani take the centre stage. Nilekani's wife Rohini will host a talk show on social issues in an yet-to-be launched channel. This far, Rohini has stayed away from the limelight. Her brainchild, the Bangalore-based Akshara Foundation has already touched the life of several thousand less privileged children in schools in Karnataka. Her other initiative Arghyam helps provide solution to the water starved regions in India. Nandan did his bit making millions for investors in his company. It now seems Rohini will find the causes for millionaires to work for.
